“ Out of the clear blue and after way too many years, I wondered how you were since I last saw you, so many years ago. A google search brought me here, to read this sad news. I don't even know how I found it and I don't know what to say other than I wish I knew you better over the years. For whatever reason, i thought of you today for the first time in a long time, and now realize that today would have been your 25th birthday, ironically.
